The screenshot shows the WordPress.com interface for Subscription Management. At the top, there are navigation links for 'My Sites', 'Reader', 'Write', and user profile. Below that is the 'WordPress.com' header with links for 'Themes', 'Support', 'Forums', 'Blog', and 'Features'. The main content area is titled 'Subscription Management' and has tabs for 'Sites (1)', 'Comments (0)', and 'Settings'. A prominent mustard-colored band displays the message 'Successfully updated your options.' Below this, a text block explains that the page is for managing followed blogs and provides an example email address: seabrookislandblog@gmail.com. It also includes instructions on how to unfollow a blog or stop all emails. A 'Bulk Actions' dropdown menu and an 'Apply' button are visible above a table of followed sites. The table has columns for 'SITE', 'DELIVERY FREQUENCY', 'FOLLOWED ON', and 'UNFOLLOW'. One site, 'Tidelines', is listed with a delivery frequency of 'Immediate' and a follow date of 'March 22, 2017'. A 'Save Changes' button is located at the bottom right of the page.
